MAKING RECOVERY REALITY

How we can help

If you've been off work a long time due to your mental health and are keen to get back into employment then we can help you succeed.

If you're experiencing a common mental health problem such as stress, anxiety or depression and are worried about the impact this is having on your job then we can support you to stay in work.

The support we offer

We can support you on a one-to-one basis, providing confidential, impartial advice and guidance to help you to move forward.

Once you're referred to our service you'll be allocated a specialist employment advisor who will work with you to set positive and achievable goals.

We offer a careers advice and guidance service that can help you with job applications, CV preparation, interview practice and support in identifying suitable job opportunities.

We can work with you and, if you consent, your employer to make plans and find solutions that enable you to carry on in work or return to work if you've been off for a while.

“My employment advisor has been brilliant at helping me to get a job. She's been so kind and understanding throughout our meetings and her encouragement and humour has put me at ease. I'm really looking forward to starting my new job.” - Client

Who we can help

Our service is available to anyone over the age of 18 who has a mental health problem (including stress, anxiety and depression) and is looking for paid employment, voluntary work or training.

You can contact us directly or we accept referrals from community mental health teams, GPs, IAPT services and any other agencies currently supporting you.

What we achieve

Richmond Fellowship has a great track record of supporting people. In 2012/13 we helped nearly 2500 people with mental health problems find work, training or education.

Between April 2014 and April 2015 – 295 clients were referred to the North West Surrey Employment service with 90% saying the service had helped improve their quality of life.
